HAUGHEY'S REMOVAL

HE IS TO BE TAKEN TO THE PRISON AT LEAVENWORTH, KAN.

Mr. French a Formidable Candidate for Warden of the New Federal Prison in Kansas.

Theodore P. Haughey is to be removed from Michigan City to the federal prison at Leavenworth. The statement was made by ex-Warden French last night at the

"Mr. Haughey was very much worried," said he, in talking to a Journal reporter, before I left the prison about the rumors of removal. He heard at last that I was a candidate for the wardenship of the new convict prison, the place being now a military prison, and one day he said to me: "'Mr. French, if you go to Leavenworth will be perfectly willing to go, too.' "I did all I could," continued Mr. French, 'to make the life of the old man as endurable as possible. He was in better health when I left the prison on the decree of the Supreme Court than when he

Mr. Haughey's sentence began in August, 1894, and runs six years, minus the good time gained. The prison to which he is to be transferred passes from the military control to the civil control on July 1, and then the federal prisoners will be collected there as fast as preparations can be made. The number of United States prisoners confined in the northern prison at Michigan City is about forty. The government pays thirty-five cents a day for their board. It is the government's intention, Mr. French said, to make the Leavenworth prison a moder one. It will in time be one of three such prisons belonging to the United States, stringing across the continent. Mr. French is a candidate for the appointment, and has the support of ex-Governor Campbell, who is the intimate seen to be appreciated; at $1.39 each. friend and former law partner of Attorney-Four hundred Handled Ice Glasses general Harmon, under whose control the ederal prisoners are placed by law. Nothing short of an order from him or from the President could avail to permit Mr. Haughey to remain in the Michigan City

The capacity of the Leavenworth prison is believed to be insufficient for the care Berry Bowls, Fruit Stands. Nut of the entire number of federal prisoners of the criminal class, which Mr. French says number about six thousand. It is to be remodeled and made larger and stronger, but in all respects a model prison. This subject has been discussed by the National Prison Reform Association at a number of meetings. The prison will be a more comfortable one than the State prison, according to a Leavenworth dispatch in yesterday's Chicago Tribune, which says: "There are many military guardhouses and civil prisons, but this military prison had not a counterpart in all the world. It was not a well-known place; comparatively few civilians ever passed its sallyport. Its inmates were men, mostly young soldiers, who had been court-martialed and sentenced for some offense against mili tary discipline. Desertion was the princi pal cause of imprisonment, though many were in for disobedience to orders. The number of prisoners varied from three hundred to six hundred. Their sentences ranged from one to a dozen years, though the term was often shortened by virtue of the regulation which permitted the com-mandant to recommend two men for clem-ency on the Fourth of July and Thanksgiving day and by special act of clemency from the War Department.

"The military prison stands to the north of Fort Leavenworth, commandingly situated on a bluff on the west bank of the Missouri. The prison was first established by an act of Congress March 3, 1873, at Rock Island, Ill. Subsequently its present location was decided on as the most suitable place in the country. Strict discipline and reformation of the inmates being the paramount object, the prison was essentially military throughout. "The prison has a frontage of 400 feet and is laid out in the shape of an "L." The wall which environs the institution is twenty feet in height and thick enough to admit of guards patrolling the top. Seven towers or boxes surmount the massive wall at the most commanding points. In these were stationed vigilant sentinels armed with shotguns. The main entrance was strongly guarded, a sentinel being stationed there day and night. The prison buildings, of which there are a large number, are all constructed of brick and stone, well ventilated, heated by steam, and illuminated by electricity. In order to facilitate the safe descent of prisoners to the ground, should a fire break out in the cell buildings, fire es capes have been constructed. The cell buildings comprise three stories and on the floor of each are from forty-four to ninety cells, which are ingeniously constructed so as to admit of a simultaneous locking of all with a lever. Each can also be opened and closed independent of the other. The cells are divided by solid iron partitions and the whole is a grate front, thus allowing the occupants to be under the constant ob servation and inspection of the guards during the night. cell rooms were designated

A STORY FROM THE JAIL.

A Wedding Where the Sunlight Shone on the Bride.

They had a wedding down at the jail the other evening. The bride had sinned, but she was young-little past eighteen-and very pretty. The groom was a sturdy young fellow of twenty-two. Both were prisoners. The police had arrested them a week before and a petty sentence had been inflicted by the court. There wasn't much sentiment about the match. The girl seemed to want to atone and the man did not object to the arrangement. He wasn't quite ready to get married, he said to the sheriff, "but if Hetty wanted to, he was willing." Then they decided that when they left the jail it should be as man and wife. The ceremony came off in the women's department of the prison. There were no guests and no minister. To a justice of the peace was delegated the priestly office of making the couple one. The witnesses were the hard-faced prisoners who came from the cells or pressed their faces to the bars. . The mellow peal of an organ was lacking. Instead there was the sound of clanking gates and the rattle of iron doors. In perfect keeping with the dreary surroundings was the attire of the bridea plain, dark gown that had already done a season's duty. The girl's fellow-prisoners prepared her for the ceremony. One them with a grim smile added a bit finery in the shape of a bright piece ribbon as the bride stepped from her cell. The ceremony was not long. The sun was about to sink in a gorgeous glow of color as the sacred office was ended. For an instant a slanting ray of light shot through the barred window and touched the face of the bride. It was noticed by a withered crone who stood in the shadows. "Happy is the bride that the sun shines cackled the old woman as she drew "Thank you," said the new-made bride simply, as she flushed a little. The justice with awkward grace and congratulated the couple. Then the little procession moved from the cell-house. As they passed into the corridor the bride turned and looked above the door. "Let this be a lesson," she read, and dropped her eyes. Something rattled along the stone floor as they started again. "That will bring you good luck," said the jailer, as he turned. It was an old shoe thrown by a prisoner. Then they passed out into the light.

to the progress of the colony which he and others have been organizing for migra-tion of Georgia. He said that the books, the south. The auditorium is on a plateau, which for a year have been open to membership, will be closed on July 10. There are already, he claims, 11,400 subscribers to the capital stock of $500,000, and by the time of the closing he thinks there will be gagement of a first-class company. For fully 12,000, representing that many heads of families and counting four and oneof families, and, counting four and onehalf to the family, the colony will number in all 55,000 people. The subscribers belong to colony clubs, which have been organized by promoters in different States, and these elect a president, secretary and treasurer, and retain the funds paid in until the colony can be legally incorporated and elect a treasurer. The bond of the treasurer, Mr. Fitzgerald says, has been placed at $1,000,000. He will be elected from the membership of the first board of directors, which will consist of one member from each State represented, and will serve a provisional term until the colony can be incorporated and an election ordered. The incorporation will be under the laws of Georgia. No member can take more than ten shares of stock, each share representing $10. Each shareholder is entitled to one tract of land, and in the application filed by him he must state whether he wants a tract of one hundred acres, eighty acres, forty acres or five acres, or whether be made by drawing from a box, a slip drawn representing the tract to which the drawer is entitled. In case of failtract drawn by permitting a year to elapse without making some improvement, the loss to the shareholder is the amount of his stock, which cannot be more than ten shares. There will also be the loss of whatever of time was spent in the matter. This is the scheme as laid down, Mr. Fitzgerald says he has no doubt of its success, providing harmony prevails. The site of the colony has been changed twice, Mr. Fitzgerald says, because of the defective titles. It was not possible to trace the tifactor in the intellectual development of tles back to the first purchasers, and it was feared that some of the descendants of the Spanish settlers might turn up som day and upset things. Mr. Fitzgerald says the titles to the present tract selected have all been traced to the government. There are only sixty-three titles represented in the entire 100,000 acres, and all but two of the owners of these have sold their holdings entirely and will leave the premises. There are many delicate interests and considerable intricacy in the scheme, but Mr. Fitzgerald says he is confident they will all work out well. The agent for the sale of the tract is ex-Governor Northen, of Geor-gia, who is supposed to hold the option on the land at an average much below $3.50 an acre. A gentleman in the city who owns a large amount of land in that part of Geor-gia, said last night that he had an option on 22,000 acres fifty miles from the colony until last January at 75 cents an acre. He said, however, that the land, which lies on the ridge of a diminishing mountain range, is capable of much cultivation and devel opment, after which it would be worth the price charged by the colony corporation. The only objectionable feature of the scheme, he said, is the large profit to the promoters in the sale made.

The funds already paid in are scattered among a large number of clubs, and the ag-

SUMMER OPERA

DAY NIGHT WITH "MIKADO,"

Singers of National Reputation Engaged with a Chorus of Twenty-Five Pretty Women.

The summer opera season in Indianapolis, the first ever given in this city, will open next, Wednesday night in the beautiful grove owned by L. S. Ayres just south of Fall creek between Meridian and Illinois streets. No appropriate name has yet been selected for the summer theater and grounds and as it is desired to have a title that will be "catchy" and popular, it has been proposed that a prize in the shape of a season ticket be offered to that person sending in the best name.

The organization engaged, the Temple Opera Company, is one of the best available summer companies in the country and has an extensive repertory. It is composed of forty people, including such prominent principals as Miss Josephine Knapp, the "countess in pink," who was a favorite here in the winter with the Francis Wilson company; Miss Tellula Evans, a stellar light with the Carleton company; Miss Mamie Evans, a contralto, who has been heard in prominent companies; Mr. Edward Temple, who was the original Ko-Ko with the D'Oyle Carte Opera Company, a company of English and American reputation; Mr. Harold Blake, one of the leading tenors in light opera, and who sang here with Lillian Russel, this season; Mr. Ben Lodge, a comedian, well known in Indianapolis from his work with standard companies that have been here, and a number of others who will prove themselves capable people. The chorus is composed of twentyfive pretty singers who have been exceed-

The "Mikado" will be the opera presented On approval. Wednesday night and the remainder of the week, the bill to be changed semi-weekly thereafter such operas as "Pinafore," "Grand Duchesse," "Fra Diavolo," and other favorites to be given. Experience in the Eastern cities where summer opera has been given shows that the people want popular operas during the hot weather, even with the best of operatic artists. It has been a long time since the "Mikado," which was undoubtedly the greatest of the Gilbert & Sullivan successes, has been heard in this city and it will be given with beautiful costuming and stage accessories. The park is to be illuminated with Japanese lanterns in honor of the event, in addition to the flood of light that will come from the arc and incandescent

The stage was practically completed yesterday and the finishing touches will be added to-morrow, so that everything will be in ship-shape for the opening Wednesday night. The stage is about as large as that of the Grand Opera House, and is trees, and will furnish space for two thousand chairs. Notwithstanding the high standard of the company engaged the prices will be lower than any that have ever prevailed in this city during an en-Monday morning, at the Big Four box-office, corner of Meridian and Washington streets. It is expected that the attendance Wednesday night will tax the capacity of the auditorium. The amusement company has been at a large expense in equipping the park and bringing the Temple Company to this city, and it will require a large attendance each night to meet expenses. By Wednesday night there will be board fence around three sides of the park, leaving the side towards Fall creek open, but protected with a strong barb-wire fence. This will allow the breezes from the north to come down over the park. The auditorium will be covered, but the sides will remain open. In case of a rain a shel-ter will thus be afforded. The entrance to the park for vehicles will be from the Meridian-street side. Asphalt pavement, that forms a continuous stretch from Washington street, by way of Seventh and Pennsylvania streets, borders the east side of the grove. Stands have been constructed bleveles and carriages, and other vehicles are to be cared for inside the park. Street cars on the Fairview, Crown Hill and Broad Ripple lines will stop at the Illinois-street gate. Cars will be run every Greenville Deal Not Completed. Mr. Edward Hawkins, who made a bid Greenville, O., said yestrday that the men interested with him in the deal are not those known as the Murdock crowd, but are capitalists in another part of the State whose names he would not divulge as yet He said the plant belongs to the city, and may mean a very tedious negotiation. The city induced the Legislature of Ohio to authorize it to sell bonds to the amount of $135,000, with which to construct the plant, but the supply of gas has never been adequate since the second winter. The amount of debt still remaining for the city to pay is over $100,000. The experience of Greenville has convinced Mr. Hawkins that municipal ownership of such corporations and their operation by city officials is a mistake.
